BE LOUD
What is BE LOUD About?

Every organization has a statement or rallying cry that resonates with staff, clients, leaders, and investors. At KCSARC that unified sense of understanding, inspiration, and purpose is captured by BE LOUD.

BE LOUD is designed to emphasize the frontline work of KCSARC to create safer communities for all of us. We do this through advocacy, policy development, treatment and prevention.

We bring a “roll-up-our-sleeves” commitment to eliminating sexual violence. We’ve got big ideas about how to tackle this complex problem, and we’re not shy about turning them into real solutions – because they’re working.

BE LOUD is about forward movement.

It happens in partnership with you!
I’ve been reflecting on a meeting I had.

The conversation centered around some of the obstacles people face when talking about sexual abuse, whether adults with their peers or with kids and young people. It can seem overwhelming or scary, or daunting just to figure out where to start.

Then I asked myself a question.

“Does every child, teen, and adult have the right to be safe from sexual abuse?”

The answer should be, “Absolutely!”

The simplicity of the question is exciting, energizing, and clarifying.

For more than 37 years, KCSARC has been in the business of helping people. We do this through advocacy and policy development, through prevention and education in our community, through our social justice programs, and through our trauma specific therapy.

Many of you have heard me say that sexual assault is not a silo issue. It’s connected to domestic violence…sex trafficking…bullying…homelessness. It’s all of these things and more.

When we think about innovation at KCSARC, we dare to bring these adjacent issues together – and to bring a variety of voices to our effort to BE LOUD.

It’s as simple – and as complex – as that.

We could not do the work we do without an amazingly talented staff, a dedicated and gifted board, and a group of investors – like you – who are passionate about envisioning a world without sexual assault.

Many thanks for your investment, your belief, and your advocacy. Together, we make extraordinary things happen!

Mary Ellen Stone
Executive Director

KCSARC believes that laws need to protect people, and that the judicial system and the legal process need to be fair, transparent, and accessible.

Unfortunately, victims of sexual assault face many barriers that challenge these fundamental rights. The length of time cases take, lack of safety measures to protect victims, victim-blaming language, and other hurdles make it challenging for victims to participate in the system.

KCSARC works to ensure that victims’ voices are heard through a comprehensive approach with two innovative programs: Legal Advocacy and CourtWatch.

Legal Advocacy partners with victims so they feel supported and informed as they go through the criminal justice system. CourtWatch provides real time oversight of the system in order to highlight barriers to justice, enhance training for judges, and encourage change.

LEGAL ADVOCACY

KCSARC has the largest sexual assault legal advocacy program in the U.S.

The Legal Advocate is the only person focused solely on the interest of the victim. Without the support of legal advocates, many victims would drop out. Without victims speaking up and reporting the assaults, our community has no way to hold sex offenders accountable for their behavior.

"I found my voice, I found my strength, I found my worth, I am free. KCSARC is the reason for my transformation. KCSARC took my case, giving me a whole new life."

- Melisa, former client

We could not serve victims of sexual assault with the dignity and compassion they deserve at the King County Prosecutor's office without Megan Allen and her team of professional and competent legal advocates! And, our entire criminal justice system benefits from the insights, analysis, and observations of Laura Jones and the CourtWatch program. Our community is indeed fortunate to have these programs and leaders.

- Dan Satterberg, King County Prosecutor

WHY IT MATTERS

- One in four girls and one in six boys will be sexually abused by the time they are 18.
- Barriers in the criminal justice system discourage the full participation of victims of sexual violence.
- Approximately 70% of victims served by KCSARC are children and youth.
- Without these services, many victims and their family members would not participate.
ONE TREND WE HAVE CONSISTENTLY OBSERVED is that sexual assault cases in the criminal justice system are taking longer to resolve. As you can imagine, this adds extra stress and strain on victims who are trying to move on with their lives. CourtWatch brought the list of all open cases for 2012 and those pending for one year or longer from 2013 to the attention of the presiding judge, as well as the chief criminal justices at each courthouse. The court is now examining its case management practices while working with other stakeholders to address this complex issue.

COURTWATCH
CourtWatch is the only court-monitoring program in Washington State to focus on sexual assault cases. The goal of this program encourages substantial system change for safer communities and increased fairness for victims.

The purpose of CourtWatch is to improve the judicial system and increase access to the judicial process for victims of sexual assault. This is done through court monitoring, in-depth analysis, offender chronologies, policy change, and development of trainings and guides for judicial officers. No other organization in Washington State is doing this important ground-breaking work.

SUCCESS TO DATE

- KCSARC played a major leadership role in developing a judicial bench guide that helps inform how judges handle sexual offense cases in Washington State.

- In 2013, KCSARC brought about legislative change by removing a loophole that previously enabled offenders to avoid protection order hearings, leaving victims vulnerable to threats of repeated violence.

- KCSARC compiled Offender Chronologies which detail how dangerous repeat offenders are able to plea to lesser charges to avoid registering as sex offenders and avoid lengthy prison time. These in-depth reports highlight gaps in the criminal justice system with the goal of improving the process.

- KCSARC was invited to present at the 2014 International Conference on Sexual Assault, Domestic Violence, and Trafficking. The conference highlighted promising practices, with KCSARC focusing on court monitoring to enhance system accountability. This conference brought together law enforcement personnel, prosecutors, victim advocates, judges, parole and probation officers, medical personnel, faith community members, and educators.

KCSARC provides 90-95% of the sexual assault legal advocacy in King County.

I am not ashamed to share with all of you that I am a victim of sexual assault. I am honored that I have the opportunity to voice what happened to me, how I was helped, and how easy it is to be strong when you have the correct guidance by your side.

I remember the trial like it was yesterday. A cold blistering week filled with nothing but interrogation, misleading questions, and disturbing stories. When they first told me that I was going to trial, I really didn’t know what that meant ... In my head I’m thinking ‘Law and Order SVU.’

I was on the witness stand for nine hours, and to have to explain the assaults of five years in front of my entire family and a jury of 12 strangers? DIFFICULT! Throughout the criminal justice process I had my GO-TO girl, my legal advocate from KCSARC. She was with me all of the time.

I’m not going to lie. The process was hard. But because I chose to BE LOUD with KCSARC, I know I’m going to be a strong woman for the rest of my life.

Life doesn’t prepare you for police reports, but KCSARC does. Life doesn’t prepare you for interviews, but KCSARC does. Life doesn’t prepare you for trial, but KCSARC does. You are not ready for meetings with investigators, BUT KCSARC IS WITH YOU.

I CONTINUE TO BE INSPIRED by KCSARC’s comprehensive approach to tackling a complex issue like sexual assault. Year after year I see that my investment in the agency is having a real impact in the community, and I’m thrilled to be supporting such an effective organization doing truly innovative work.

- Maggie Walker, Former Chair, Seattle Foundation
I am still in a state of amazement that, after your treatment program, I no longer suffer from flashbacks, bad dreams, or intrusive thoughts. My days are peaceful, and I sleep soundly every night. The change is so dramatic. I can hardly put it into words. I suffered so much, and for so long, before you all came into my life and truly healed me.
